B. Differences in protection

a) Retail Clients/Professional Clients

Where we treat you as a retail client, you will be entitled to more protections under the law than you would be entitled to as a professional client. In summary, the additional protections retail clients are entitled to are as follows:

- A retail client will be given more information disclosures with regard to ourselves, our services and any investments, our costs, commissions, fees and charges and the safeguarding of client financial instruments and client funds.
- Under the law, where we provide investment services other than discretionary portfolio management, we shall ask a retail client to provide information regarding his knowledge and experience in the investment field relevant to the specific type of product or service offered or demanded so as to enable the investment firm to assess whether the investments service or product envisaged is appropriate for the client. In case we consider, on the basis of the information received, that the product or service is not appropriate to a retail client, we shall warn the client accordingly. Please note that we are not required to assess appropriateness in certain cases (e.g. discretionary portfolio management) specified by law.

We shall be entitled to assume that a professional client has the necessary experience and knowledge in order to understand the risks involved in relation to those particular investment services or transactions, or types of transaction or product, for which the client is classified as a professional client.

Consequently, and unlike the situation with a retail client, we should not generally need to obtain additional information from the client for the purposes of the assessment of appropriateness (where relevant) for those products and services for which they have been classified as a professional client.

- When executing orders, investment firms and credit institutions providing investment services must take all reasonable steps to achieve what is called “best execution” of the client’s orders that is to obtain the best possible result for their clients.

Where we execute an order on behalf of a retail client, the best possible result shall be determined in terms of the total consideration, representing the price of the financial instrument and the costs related to execution, which shall include all expenses incurred by the client which are directly related to the execution of the order, including execution venue fees, clearing and settlement fees and any other fees paid to third parties involved in the execution of the order. When providing professional clients with best execution we are not required to prioritise the overall costs of the transaction as being the most important factor in achieving best execution for them.

- Investment firms and credit institutions providing investment services must obtain from clients such information as is necessary for the firm or credit institution, as the case may be, to understand the essential facts about the client and to have a reasonable basis for believing, giving due consideration to the nature and extent of the service provided, that the specific transaction to be recommended in the course of providing the service of investment advice, or entered into in the course of providing a non-discretionary portfolio management service (when relevant), satisfies the following criteria:
 - 1) It meets the investment objectives of the client in question;
 - 2) It is such that the client is able financially to bear any related investment risks consistent with his investment objectives;
 - 3) It is such that the client has the necessary experience and knowledge in order to understand the risks involved in the transaction or in the management of his portfolio.

Where we provide an investment service to a professional client we shall be entitled to assume that, in relation to the products, transactions and services for which it is so classified, the client has the necessary level of experience and knowledge for the purposes of paragraph (iii) above. In addition, under certain circumstances, we shall be entitled to assume that a professional client is able financially to bear any investment risks consistent with its investment objectives.

- We must inform retail clients of material difficulties relevant to the proper carrying out of their order(s) promptly upon becoming aware of the difficulty.
- We are required to provide retail clients with more information than professional clients as regards execution of orders.
- We shall not use financial instruments held by us on behalf of a client for our own account or the account of another client of ourselves, without the client's prior express consent to the use of the instruments on specified terms, as evidenced, in the case of a retail client, by his signature or equivalent alternative mechanism.
- Retail clients may be entitled to compensation under the Investor Compensation Fund for Clients of Investment Firms.

C. Eligible Counterparties

Where we treat you as an eligible counterparty, you will be entitled to less protection under the law than you would receive as a professional client in respect of the reception and transmission of orders, the execution of orders and/or any ancillary service directly related to such transactions. In addition to the above, where we treat you as an eligible counterparty, we are not required to:

- provide you with best execution for your orders;
- disclose to you information regarding any fees or commissions that we pay or receive;
- assess the appropriateness of a product or service that we provide to you;
- provide you with information about ourselves, our services and the arrangements through which we will be remunerated;
- provide you with risk disclosures on the products or services you buy from us;
- report to you on the execution of your orders.
